

Alice in Wonderland

Alice fell down the rabbit hole. It was very dark and she couldn't see anything. Slowly it became lighter and Alice could look around. She was in a room — a very strange room. None of the walls were straight.

At last her feet touched the floor of this strange place.

Now where was that rabbit? A little shape ran around the corner. "Please wait, Mr. Rabbit!" cried Alice.

There was no rabbit around the corner, only a little door. Alice opened it and found a smaller door. Behind that there was a much smaller door. Behind that was the smallest door of all.

Alice had to go through the smallest door on her hands and knees. Now she was in another room, and there was another door with a gold doorknob.

Alice tried to open the door and the Doorknob cried, "OW!" Alice was very surprised. "I'm sorry!"

"You're too big for this door," said the Doorknob. "Try the bottle."

Suddenly, there was a table behind Alice. On the table there was a bottle with a label — DRINK ME.

Alice drank once, twice, three times. With each drink, she shrank. Soon she was smaller than the bottle!

"Now I can use the door," she said.

"Not without a key," laughed the Doorknob.
