

Cinderella

Once upon a time, Cinderella lived with her stepmother and two stepsisters.

They were cruel, and every day they did mean things to Cinderella.

One day, an invitation to a ball arrived.

"You have to stay home!" said her stepmother and stepsisters as they left.

As Cinderella sat crying, her Fairy Godmother appeared and said,

"I am going to help you,"

with a wave of her magic wand.

A beautiful dress and a pumpkin carriage appeared!

"This magic will only last until midnight," said the Fairy Godmother, and she gave Cinderella a pair of glass slippers.

When Cinderella arrived at the castle,

a handsome prince came up to her and asked,

"May I have this dance?"

The two of them danced happily together when,

"Bong! Bong! Bong!"

The clock struck midnight!

Cinderella rushed home,

but she lost one of her glass slippers on the stairs.

The next day, a servant from the castle came to the house.

"The Prince will marry whoever owns this glass slipper."

"It's mine! It's mine!"

lied the two stepsisters.

But their feet were too big to fit!

Cinderella, of course, was a perfect fit.

Cinderella married the Prince, and they lived happily ever after.
